DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wilson US 3,981,838 in view of Westbrook et al. US 5,389,711.

1. Wilson shows ester compounds that read on applicants claimed solvent compound, see column 3 lines 25+. Here the claimed Q is the substituted aromatic phthalate or trimellitic acid. The claimed R is the R and of the patent. Claimed P is the A and higher alkyl R groups of the patent. This patent further identifies thermoplastic resins to which the compound can be added, see column 4, lines 4+ and column 6, lines 31-40. The difference between the claimed invention and this disclosure is that the patent fails to specifically identify the claimed thermoplastic elastomer and oil. The thermoplastic elastomer is a species of the thermoplastic polymers listed in the patent. One of ordinary skill would find the block polymer species obvious from this disclosure given the knowledge generally available in the art and the understanding of how the plasticizers and lubricants function in thermoplastic elastomers, irrespective of the structure.
2. The Westbrook et al. patent has been applied to further show the art recognized conventionality of using aromatic ester compounds as plasticizers in thermoplastic elastomer compositions irrespective of their structure, column 7, line 30+ and column 9, lines 1+.

Conclusion

To avoid abandonment of the application, appellant must exercise one of the following two options:

(1) file a reply under 37 CFR 1.111 (if this Office action is non-final) or a reply under 37 CFR 1.113 (if this Office action is final); or,

(2) initiate a new appeal by filing a notice of appeal under 37 CFR 41.31 followed by an appeal brief under 37 CFR 41.37. The previously paid notice of appeal fee and appeal brief fee can be applied to the new appeal. If, however, the appeal fees set forth in 37 CFR 41.20 have been increased since they were previously paid, then appellant must pay the difference between the increased fees and the amount previously paid.
